

'We need more players for us to implement women's T20'

'The first part is professionalisation'

By Athenkosi Tsotsi

CSA CEO Pholetsi Moseki says they, with the commissioner of the SA20 Graeme Smith, have intentions of establishing a women's version. Following the conclusion of the Women's T20 World Cup, Proteas captain Sune Luus urged CSA and other stakeholders to establish an SA20 league for women to help grow the game and capitalise on the momentum created by their World Cup heroics. The inaugural season for the SA20 was a huge success, with the marketing invested off the field reaping rewards as crowds flocked to the host cities and the six franchises delivered on the pitch. There's a belief that an SA20 for the ladies will elevate the interest in the women's game and bring commercial interest. Yesterday, Moseki said for that to happen, they need a pool of players and must convert the semi-pro structures to professional ones.

to have an SA20 for Women," he said at OR Tambo airport. "As soon as Enoch Nkwe (CSA's director of cricket) and his team tell us we have got enough pool of players, we'll be ready to launch," he said.
